On behalf of Maryland's independent colleges and universities and the 65,600 students we serve, thank you for the opportunity to provide information regarding Senate Bill 767 (Washington) Higher Education – Hunger-Free Campus Grant Program - Established. This bill establishes a new grant program available to Maryland public two-year and four-year institutions. Hunger is a growing problem on college and university campuses; some figures estimate that up to half of college students will face food insecurities at some point while pursuing their degree. Under SB 767, institutions may be designated as "hunger-free" campuses and receive grant funding for programming if they: have a hunger task force, have a designated staff member to help eligible students enroll in the Maryland Food Supplement Program, hold hunger awareness activities, have a food pantry, have some form of a meal sharing/meal plan credit donation program, and conduct an annual survey on student hunger.

While MICUA member institutions are not eligible for this grant program, many of our campuses are already engaged in the activities described above and support initiatives that address student and community food insecurities. Some examples include, but are not limited to:

- Launched in 2016, Stevenson University has a campus food pantry run by student coordinators and volunteers. It holds regular hours and is in a central location on campus proximate to other student services. It holds food drives, disseminates public service announcements, and has a Facebook page.
- Maryland Institute College of Art (MICA) recently established a campus food pantry to serve its students, recognizing the importance of addressing food insecurities to promote both individual wellbeing and educational attainment. MICA also held a food drive in November as part of its annual campus-wide Unity Fest activities.
- The Frederick Food Security Network is a community gardening program through the Hood College Center for Coastal and Watershed Studies. It is establishing a network of community gardens to improve food security for residents of local food deserts, reduce local water pollution by diverting rooftop runoff for use as irrigation, and promote better eating habits and environmental stewardship.
- Loyola University Maryland's FreshCrate Program makes affordable and fresh produce available all year long in local stores along Baltimore's York Road corridor. It is part of the University's York Road Initiative, which focuses on strengthening the community in areas including education, food access, and commercial revitalization.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide this information related to Senate Bill 767 on behalf of our member institutions.
